

About SprintRay

SprintRay is a technology company that builds end-to-end 3D printing equipment and services for dental clinics and labs. Founded in 2014 by two PHD students from the University of California's Additive Manufacturing program, SprintRay has partnerships across the dental industry, including recent software integrations with two of the largest dental CAD/CAM products on the market.

For more information, visit www.sprintray.com